THE RECTOR WRITES

While shopping earlier this year I happened to notice that the till screens in one store provided some prompts to encourage staff to be welcoming to customers. As we are now entering the season of Advent when we are encouraged to think of others and welcome visitors to church events and services I thought it was worth sharing these tips with you.

Under the heading Friendly staff were encouraged to make eye contact, smile and say hello: simple advice perhaps, but it is so important that when people come into our church buildings the first contact they have is with a friendly person.

Under the heading Interested staff were encouraged to be listening and asking. People often come to church wanting to be listened to and engaged with, and it is good to develop the practice of listening and asking open questions that enable people to share something of their lives if they wish to.

Finally, under the heading Willing there was a prompt to be helpful and enthusiastic. If visitors come into our buildings and feel that no-one helps them to feel at home and that people are unenthusiastic about them being in church they may go away and never come back again.

These are very simple tips for being welcoming to the many visitors we receive in our churches at this special time of year, and we need to seize the wonderful and rare opportunity we have in Advent and at Christmas to engage in a welcoming and positive way with the wider community.

However, providing a friendly, interested and willing welcome is of course something that should happen throughout the year and is the job of all church members and not just those who are sidespeople or ministers involved in greeting people at the door.

Mary and Joseph struggled to find a warm welcome in Bethlehem before Jesus was born, but as his followers we are called not just to welcome Jesus into our hearts afresh this Christmas but also to share his love by welcoming others into our midst.

With love and every blessing for Advent and Christmas, Andrew

ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S WALKING GROUP

Our 10 mile November walk took us to Box and back, twenty one walkers setting out on a glorious autumnal day, almost clear blue skies and crisp leaves underfoot. Our outbound route via Middlewick and the Macmillan Way was easy going, in contrast to our climb back to Corsham through Henley, Thorn Wood and Lower Rudloe. There was an option to do 5 miles by returning to our start at the Hare and Hounds by 'bus. One lady member of the congregation, who had thought that 5 miles would be enough, resolutely completed the whole 10 miles. A sterling effort!

Photos courtesy of Richard Thackeray are on the church web site, click on 'Activities' on the top menu and scroll down.

Our next walk will be on Thursday, 14th December, meeting at 10:00hrs in the rear car park of The Bell Inn, The Wharf, Bowden Hill, Lacock, SN15 2PJ for a walk of about 5 miles. An optional lunch is available choosing from either the Main or Christmas menus, both can be seen at www.thebellatlacock.co.uk. Please inform Charles Todd cwft60@gmail.com if you intend lunching at The Bell from either menu. If you will be choosing from the Christmas menu please notify him of your choice. All notifications to Charles by 5th December please.

ST. BART'S CHRISTMAS TREE FESTIVAL

There will also be the opportunity to sit and sing carols from 6.50pm until 7.00pm.

From 2 – 10 Dec the festival will be open during daylight hours Mon – Sat and on Sundays from midday until 4.30pm.

CORSHAM CHURCHES FOODBANK– NOV 17 UPDATE

First of all a big thank you to all the Churches and local schools who were so generous at Harvest. Our cupboards are now well stocked for the nominations we will be getting to help local families over the Christmas period. Although there will still be some items we will need to buy, we can concentrate on getting the treats that will make such a difference at this time of year, especially to children. We now have our own website, developed by the husband of one of our volunteers, which you can visit at www.corshamchurchesfoodbank.org.uk to see how we operate. Happy web browsing and thanks again to you all.
